Oxford United in the Community - Environmental Sustainability Statement

At Oxford United in the Community, we want to play our part in supporting healthier, stronger and better connected communities across Oxfordshire. We recognise that environmental sustainability is part of that wider responsibility.

As a community charity, we are committed to taking a practical and proportionate approach to reducing our environmental impact and using resources responsibly. We know that, as a charity of our size, the most important thing is to make sensible improvements over time in the areas where we can have real influence, including travel, waste, use of materials, events and day-to-day working practices.

We also recognise that our role is not only about how we operate internally. Through our programmes, partnerships and community presence, we want to encourage positive local awareness and action where this is relevant to our mission and the communities we serve.

Our environmental sustainability work is supported by Board oversight, named leads within the charity, an annual review of environmental impacts and a practical action plan. This helps ensure that our approach is active, proportionate and aligned with the charity's wider purpose.

We will keep this work under review and continue to look for realistic ways to improve.
